

Translating Research for Families and Midwives

Online resources on recent research

The members of the Division of Research of the Midwives Alliance of North America have created a number of blog posts to be shared with midwives, families, and others interested in the outcomes of midwifery-related research. Blog posts include:

- Understanding Relative Risks in the Community Setting
- New Waterbirth Practice Template Adds To Growing Body of Waterbirth Resources
- Validating MANA Stats 4.0: The Largest Available Dataset on Physiologic Birth in the US
- Integrating Data from the New Waterbirth Study into Care: An Evidence-informed Practice Framework
- Waterbirth Safe For Babies, Finds New Research
- New and Sometimes Conflicting Research on Out-of-Hospital Birth
- Implementing Evidence-Informed Practice During Midwifery Care
- Frequently Asked Questions: Practitioner and Practice Characteristics of Certified Professional Midwives
- New Research on Planned Home VBAC
- Home Birth Research Q&A
- New Studies Confirm Safety of Home Birth With Midwives in the U.S.

Find links to all of these resources at:
mana.org/research/online-research-resources

Division of Research

